WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Tony Gage accidentally strikes up an acquaintance with Ann Holt, granddaughter of Jerome Cedric, one of America's wealthiest men. Ann tells Tony that she is in love with him, but he does not believe her, thinking that she merely wiskes to use him as a means of passing the time involved in crossing the ocean to New York.

In New York, Bill Holt, Ann's father, is deep in financial difficulties. The bank of which he is president is in grave need of cash, and, although he knows that Jerome Cedric would carry him through, he refuses to go to him for aid. He does not mind having the old man do things for Ann, even to the extent of arranging her engagement to Prince Carlos, but he would not take anything from him himself. Bill, not being able to meet Ann at the boat, greets her effusively when she arrives home from Europe.

"Seems to me there's a lot more gray around those temples," Ann studied him closely.

Her father turned to pour himself another drink. "That's to add to my sex appeal, honey."

Ann was dubious. "You're sure it hasn't anything to do with the bank?" She paused. He did not answer, so she coaxed. "Come on, Bill. We always tell each other everything."

"There's nothing to tell—money's a little tight everywhere—but the bank's all right—I'm all right—and you're all right." He lifted his glass for a toast.

Although Ann drank she was uncasy about her dad. However, she considered it best to drop the matter.

Things went on as usual in the Holt home for the next few days—that is, with the exception that Ann tried her best to call Tony, but the lad refused to answer the phone.

"If I tried for two weeks to get a man on the phone and he wouldn't set and the phone and he wouldn't set answer." I have a rotten temper.

"If I tried for two weeks to get a man on the phone and he wouldn't talk—I'd begin to suspect he didn't like me," her grandmother suggested.

"Guess I'm a die-hard!" Ann retorted, as she mechanically dressed for dinner. Her father had invited a guest; but that meant nothing to a guest; but that meant nothing to "Those things don't matter. All I

"Why, I hardly make enough to keep you in orchids," he declared. She put her arms around him and whispered. "Then there'll be no more orchide." She was just entering the room where her father was seated when the butler announced "Mr. Gage."
Ann's eyes opened big. "Bill!" she He gave her a long, grave look, then quickly gathered her close to him in a long and passionate kiss. "I'm going to give him a little case to handle," her father explained with a twinkle in his eye.

Spring Showers for the Bride

SPRING COMES in with romance, and romance brings announcement parties and showers for the happy bride-to-be. Every shower hostess yearns to plan an ingenious party that will linger long in the memory of her fortunate friend. This can be simply done by a novel method of hiding the gifts where they are suspected but not seen. Fasten the handle of a pretty but inexpensive parasol in an adjustable Christmas tree holder in the center of the table. Cover the framework of the holder with fronds of fern, spring leaves or tissue paper greenery with rosebuds or spring flowers peeping out here and there. Gifts of linen or lingerie wrapped in flat tissue paper packages may be tucked under each rib as near the outer edges as possible. A small snapshot, of the friend who gave the gift, framed in a lace paper doily, may be tied to each package with a long ribbon so it hangs almost to the table. It is very important that the menu be memorable for this joyous occasion, so we suggest the following gay combinations:

> Fruit Basket Salad* Assorted Sandwiches* Butterscotch Parfait Sprinkled with Salted Pecans* Rice Flakes Macaroons* Coffee

Fruit Basket Salad-Chill 61 halves of canned pears, using large halves because small pears are not nearly as nice for this salad. Using a knife, scoop out a small part of the center, leaving what is to be a basket for the salad. Divide 2 small packages of soft white cream theese into four parts, and using regetable colorings, tint each part of cheese a different color, leaving one part white. Do not color the theese deeply. Chill the cheese and form into small egg shaped balls, asing one egg of each color in each pear basket. After placing one tinted egg of each color in the basket, place it in a deep cup of trisp chilled lettuce and garnish at one side with Fruit Salad Dressing made by folding into Mayonnaise an equal amount of whipped cream.

Shrimp Dainties-Remove black veins from one can shrimp. Grind through food chopper or mash with tork. Add 8 Ripe Mission Olives, chopped fine, and mix to suitable paste with Mayonnaise. Spread on small rounds of white bread and top with another round of bread from which center has been removed with a tiny cooky cutter or thimble. Place a small amount of Mayonnaise in center and top with a whole shrimp.

Cream Cheese, Olive and Horseradish Sandwiches-Soak 1 tea-Celery and Olive Sandwiches- with pecans.

Chop 1 cup celery very finely and add 14 cup Stuffed Spanish Olives, egg whites until stiff, then fold in chopped. Moisten with Salad Cream 1/2 cup sugar gradually and 1 tea and spread on buttered bread or spoon vanilla. Next fold in 1/2 cur

LESIEURS AMONG FIRST NEW MADRID SETTLERS

The New Madrid Record in 1893 began to publish a series of articles dealing with the early settlers of New Madrid County. They were written by a person who signed himself "A Creole" and are here printed in abbreviated and somewhat paraphrased form because numerous descendants of those first settlers are still living in Southeast Missouri.

The first white settlers at New Madrid were Francis and Joseph Le Sieur, whose father had immigrated in the early part of the seventeenth century to Canada from Southast France. These two young men heard of the country bordering on the Mississippi River from reports made by Lasalle and Father.
Henepin and the French who had established a line of forts from Quebec to New Orleans, some of which were "Pain Court (St. Louis), "Kaskaskia", "Misirie" (Ste. Genevieve., and "Nouveille"

(New Bourbon). When Francis and Joseph arder to find a suitable trading locatin, and in the latter part of that same year they reached New Madrid, which was then a large Delaware Indian town. They were cordially received by the Indians, and before leaving to superintend the partnership with a trader, and then went back to Lagraisse to build houses and stockades.

In 1790 the Spainards, headed by Pirece Fouche, arrived at the place, named it New Madrid, and built Fort Celeste. The town grew, escaping flood waters which inundated other villages nearby, since they passed off through the swamps south of Cape Girardeau and spread over the sunken lands in Southeast Missouri and North Arkansas From 1790 to 1797 numerous French families, includ-ing the Gilbeaus, DeLisles, Latrimouels, Logonions, and LeGrands, moved west from Detroit.

Joseph married a Miss LeGrand and died in 1795, leaving two sons. Three years later one of his nephews, Raphael LeSieur, came to New Madrid to work with his uncle, Francis, and together they established a new trading house on the Mississippi River, naming the place, now called Caruthersville, Little Prairie. Because of inducements offered by the Spanish government to immigrants, the country's population grew rapidly.

Six children were born to Francis and his wife, formerly Miss Cecil Gilbeau, whom he married in May, 1787. These, Francis, Jr, Collestigue, Margarette, Godfrey, Matilda and Christine, all died leaving large families as did Napoleon, the only child of Francis' second wife. With his third wife, who was Madam Charlotte DeLisle Lognion, Francis lived until his death at Pt. Pleasant in 1826. His last living child, Godfrey LeSieur. died in 1872 at the home of his also left a large family of children and grandchildren, when he died at the age of 83.

Robert McCoy, an officer in the Spanish naval service, noted, on his way to New Orleans in December, 1787 that the place now occupied by New Madrid was a wilderness. Following year, when he returned, he found about twelve My sleeping bag is warm as toast ington, 48th Street and Lexington families living on the site of the present town. Later, he moved to

It may be the Meroney Plans to wrong thing to do to open old sores, but we haven't forgotten the sacrificing of Dan Pepper and now is the time to get rid of one or two more who caused the removal. Dan Pepper was worth more than his salary for the splendid publicity that he gave the Sik-eston Municipal Plant and the City of Sikeston, and this sort of publicity could not be purchased, and never will be had again. He was an engineer of ability, a poliished gentleman and his removal was unfortunate.

As soon as the new pavement has been laid and cured, traffic on Tanner Street will be very heavy. This street is costing the home owners along the route nothing. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to have a white way erected along this route in order to commemorate the occasion of a liberal Government in building a monument that will likely last forever. We have asked the Superintendent of the Municipal Plant to give us sketched plans and the cost of such an improvement and will give Sikeston Men Buy sketched plans and the cost of it to interested parties as soon as is received.

With 71 years just ahead of us we wish to say that we are not preciate the fact of some people connecting us up with being 40 years younger than we really are.

Every shower hostess yearns to plan an ingenious party that will linger long in the memory of her fortunate friend. This can be simply done by a novel method of hiding the gifts where they are suspected but not seen, Fasten the handle of a pretty but inexpensive parasol in an adjustable Christmas tree holder in the center of the table. Cover the framework | weather. of the holder with fronds of fern, spring leaves or tissue paper greenery with rosebuds or spring flowers peeping out here and there. Gifts of linen or lingerio wrapped in flat tissue paper packages may be tucked under each rib as near the outer edges as possible. A small snapshot, of the friend who gave the gift, framed in a lace paper doily, may be tied to each package with a long ribbon so it hangs almost to the table. It is very important that the menu be memorable for this joyous occasion, so we suggest the following gay combinations:

Fruit Basket Salad-Chill 611 halves of canned pears, using large halves because small pears are not nearly as nice for this salad. Using a knife, scoop out a small part of the center, leaving what is to be a basket for the salad. Divide 2 small packages of soft white cream theese into four parts, and using regetable colorings, tint each part of cheese a different color, leaving one part white. Do not color the theese deeply. Chill the cheese and form into small egg shaped balls, asing one egg of each color in each pear basket. After placing one tinted egg of each color in the basket, place it in a deep cup of trisp chilled lettuce and garnish at one side with Fruit Salad Dressing made by folding into Mayonnaise an equal amount of whipped cream.

Shrimp Dainties-Remove black veins from one can shrimp. Grind through food chopper or mash with fork. Add 8 Ripe Mission Olives chopped fine, and mix to suitable paste with Mayonnaise. Spread on small rounds of white bread and top with another round of bread from which center has been removed with a tiny cooky cutter or thimble. Place a small amount of Mayonnaise in center and top with a whole shrimp.

LESIEURS AMONG FIRST NEW MADRID SETTLERS

The New Madrid Record in 1893 began to publish a series of articles dealing with the early settlers of New Madrid County. They were written by a person who signed himself "A Creole" and are here printed in abbreviated and somewhat paraphrased form be-cause numerous descendants of those first settlers are still living in Southeast Missouri.

The first white settlers at New Madrid were Francis and Joseph Le Sieur, whose father had immigrated in the early part of the seventeenth century to Canada from Southast France. These two young men heard of the country bordering on the Mississippi River from reports made by Lasalle and Fathe. Henepin and the French who had established a line of forts from Quebec to New Orleans, some of which were "Pain Court (St. Louis), "Kaskaskia", "Misirie" (Ste. Genevieve, and "Nouveille" der to find a suitable trading locatin, and in the latter part of that same year they reached New Madrid, which was then a large Delaware Indian town. They were cordially received by the Indians, and before leaving to superintend the shipping of some furs and bear's oil, they named the place "Lagraisse" (The Grease). After reconnoitering they returned to Pain connoitering the pain connoitering the pain connoitering the pain connoitering the pain connoiterin Court, where they effected a partnership with a trader, and then went back to Lagraisse to build

In 1790 the Spainards, headed by Pirece Fouche, arrived at the place, named it New Madrid, and built Fort Celeste. The town grew, escaping flood waters which inundated other villages nearby, since they passed off through the swamps south of Cape Girardeau and spread over the sunken lands in Southeast Missouri and North Arkansas From 1790 to 1797 numerous French families, including the Gilbeaus, DeLisles, Latrimouels, Logonions, and LeGrands, moved west from Detroit.
